Once you start building on green belt land it will be the trend for the future as the population will always be increasing so there will be more demand for building houses.

A small village like Blackmore can accommodate small developments but a large development of new housing would not be suitable. We have no Sunday or evening buses, only one small shop and post office. A school that is not very big and has no room for expansion. The traffic through Blackmore has increased considerably and there is a parking problem already. Blackmore is a lovely village, once it is spoilt there is not going back!
